LANDSOUTH CONSTRUCTION COMPLETES STATE-OF-THE-ART FAMILY EYECARE CENTER

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla. (Sept. 27, 2010) – LandSouth Construction recently completed construction on the new A1A Family Eyecare center, located near the intersection of Hodges and J. Turner Butler boulevards. The 3,000-square-foot facility will house offices, treatment rooms and a laboratory with full digital technology, making it one of the most state-of-the-art eyecare centers in Northeast Florida.

“The A1A Family Eyecare building has been a fascinating project, as we had the ability to take a challenging design and provide a high-end product,” said James Pyle, President and CEO of LandSouth Construction. “Design and construction of the facilities was undertaken with the future, both in terms of expansion and technology, in mind.”

“The latest in digital wiring and technology was used throughout the center, including the addition of flat screen TV monitors to provide training and patient information,” said LandSouth project manager Sonny Lloyd.

Architectural details were kept clean and modern, including ceramic tile floors and a stone background wall used to frame the reception area near the entrance. A unique adolescent therapy room was equipped for younger patients, with rubber flooring and magnetic white boards.
