LANDSOUTH CONSTRUCTION SPONSORS SUMMER CHARITY EVENT IN RESPONSE TO THE GULF COAST OIL SPILL CRISIS

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla. (Sept. 21, 2010) – Employees at LandSouth Construction have birds on the brain this summer. The company has teamed up with Sarasota-based Save Our Seabirds (SOS) organization to assist in efforts to rescue and rehabilitate native and migratory birds, which have increased due to the Gulf Coast oil spill. LandSouth staff members have been divided into teams that are competing to collect much-needed supplies listed on the SOS wish list. So far, competition has been as hot as area temperatures.

“We chose Save the Seabirds as our summer charity project because its needs are greater than ever in the face of the oil spill crisis,” said James Pyle, President and CEO of LandSouth Construction. “We’ve had a great response from our employees, and they’ve had fun participating in the competition. Supplies have been flooding in to the office, and we will be shipping them to SOS at the end of July.”

Save Our Seabirds, which was founded in 1990, helps hundreds of birds each year throughout the coastal regions. Its Oiled Wildlife Mobile Response Team has been assisting with the threat to Gulf Coast wildlife in the wake of the oil spill. Some of the birds they help rehabilitate include egrets, herons, pelicans, ibis, gulls, owls and osprey.

The SOS charity project is part of LandSouth Construction’s ongoing Kaizen program. LandSouth executives have implemented this unique business philosophy – “change is good” – throughout their operations and in dealings with both employees and clients. It is designed to foster continual improvements in business and life. Contributions to society and the community are an important component of the program.
